

Feng Shui For Real Life E-zine

January 2010
Vol. 10, Issue 1

Welcome to the Feng Shui For Real Life E-zine, a monthly e-mail magazine with Feng Shui tips, success stories, clutter-clearing advice, and other information to help you bring simple Feng Shui improvements into your life. For more about Feng Shui, please visit my website www.FengShuiForRealLife.com.

I love to write about Feng Shui, but I need to limit the length of this e-zine to keep it from getting caught in spam filters. If you want to read more about the topics in this e-zine, please read the weekly articles I post on the Feng Shui site at BellaOnline.com.

What's New This Month

10th Anniversary Issue

This issue marks the start of the 10th year for my monthly newsletter. From a two-pager with only local distribution, it has grown to an e-zine with an international audience. Thanks to all of my wonderful readers who continue to share success stories, questions, and feedback for each issue. Many of you have been with me from the start and I appreciate your loyalty. I welcome suggestions for topics to cover and new sections to add to the e-zine in 2010. And of course, keep your questions coming.

Move 27 Things In January

Long time readers know that not only do I recommend moving 27 things in January to make room for new energy to flow into your life in the coming year, but I also practice what I preach. This year my plan to "fling" 27 things out of my pantry on New Year's Day turned into a major kitchen clutter-clearing project. By the time I was finished, I had cleared and rearranged every kitchen drawer and cabinet and it felt like I moved 27 hundred things. The result? In the first week alone, five new clients contacted me to schedule appointments, I set up two workshops, and I received a major book order. Will the same good luck flow into your life? Move 27 things this month, then write and tell me your results so I can publish them next month.

Upcoming -- Feng Shui, Food, Fun, and a Free Facial

Join me for a workshop about Feng Shui and love on February 6 at Great Face and Body Spa in Albuquerque. Everyone who attends will receive a free facial from the spa. Details are in the "Workshops" section.

*Feng Shui Quick Guide For Home and Office --
Secrets For Attracting Wealth, Harmony, & Love*

Whether you are trying to get rid of a few excess pounds you put on from eating too many holiday cookies, working to improve your health, or anything in between, a few Feng Shui changes can help.

- Hide Your Kitchen From View. If your kitchen is the first room you see when you enter the house, it may encourage eating. Keep the kitchen door closed or hang a mirror or artwork near the door that distracts your eye away from the kitchen and toward another room in your home.
- Use Blue Plates. Switch to blue plates to slow down your eating and help stick to a diet. Blue is the Water Element color which has been shown to slow down the body by reducing blood pressure and pulse rate.
- Avoid the Color Red. Restaurant owners know that red stimulates the appetite and they use it generously in their décor. But in your home it's best to avoid using red dishes, tablecloths, or placemats if you want to lose weight.
- Eat at a Beautiful Table. Try to eat all of your meals at a beautifully-set table, including fresh flowers, to make each meal a positive and pleasant experience.
- Remove Clutter. Clutter keeps you stuck in a rut, no matter where it is located, and a cluttered kitchen can psychologically add weight. Lose the clutter on your counters and in your cabinets to lose weight.
- Clear Your Closets. Get rid of old clothes you have been saving for "when you lose weight." If you hold on to clothes that don't fit, it symbolizes holding on to old behavior patterns.
- Balance the Yin and Yang. Vary the color and texture of the foods you eat and the dishes you serve them on. Since fruits and vegetables are the most colorful foods, mix their colors and you will naturally make healthier choices.
- Remove Blocks to Weight Loss. Locate your workout equipment in a room where you will actually use it.

Let Go of Hobby Supplies

January is "Get Organized Month," and one first step in getting organized is to get rid of supplies from hobbies that no longer interest you. Whether it's skis, piles of yarn and fabric, or camera equipment, if you don't use the supplies there's no reason to keep them. Here are a few steps to help you say goodbye to an old hobby.

- Call up friends who are still into the hobby and let them take what they want from your supplies.
- Sell the supplies on a website whose community is dedicated to the hobby.
- Hold a yard sale and include in your advertising the types of things you are selling; target publications that people interested in the hobbies will read.
- Call local stores that sell your supplies to see if they will take your used supplies on consignment, or if they can identify clubs that could use the supplies.
- Locate nonprofits and/or schools that teach the hobby to see if they will buy the supplies at a discount, or take free supplies off your hands.
- Sell your supplies on sites like eBay or Craigslist, or recycle them via Freecycle.

Since "nothing new comes into your life until you make room for it," getting rid of unneeded supplies helps make room for you to discover new hobbies and pursuits.

Remove hobby clutter from your car; your car moves you forward, and a clean one attracts opportunities to move forward in your life.

Success Story

Matt's Expanding Business

The first time I did an office consultation for Matt, he was moving his software development business from his basement to leased space. I recommended he take the smaller of the two offices in the suite because it was in the power position, and give his marketing manager the office that occupied the relationship area. He reluctantly followed the advice, and six months later called to thank me and arrange another consultation. He was moving his growing company into bigger space and expanding from three staff members to seventeen. I recommended the most auspicious location for his office, and where to locate his managers. Eighteen months later, I was delighted to get more good news from Matt.

At our last consultation, you asked if I believed that my Feng Shui changes had anything to do with the success of my company. My answer then was that it probably had and that was why I wanted a second consultation. Well, my answer now is "of course" because we just landed our largest contract yet, and we are ready to sign a lease for half a floor in a new office building. I want you to take a look at the space to make sure we locate everyone in the right place. Yes, this Feng Shui does work.

Ask the Feng Shui Maven

Q: Why am I supposed to have a current photo of my husband and me in our bedroom? The only photos we have in frames right now are our wedding photos, which are nine years old, but obviously we are very happy in them.

A: It's certainly OK to display your wedding photos in your bedroom, but it's equally important to balance them by adding recent photos to emphasize your current life together. Just as you "update" your relationship throughout the years, I recommend you update your photo display. Symbolically, your relationship would be stuck in the past if the only photos you choose to display are nine years old.

Q: We have an enclosed screened porch off our family room that we use all spring, summer, and early fall, but it isn't heated so we don't use it in the winter. Should we treat it as a room when using the bagua to map our house?

A: Since the screened porch is connected to your home it should be included when you use the bagua map to diagram your home. Be sure to decorate the porch with the same care you use for other rooms in your home, rather than consigning the old furniture or junk to this area. And try to enter the porch occasionally during the winter months when you don't use it, even if it is only to sweep away the dust and cobwebs.

Beyond Feng Shui

Home Improvements That Make the Sale

If you are waiting for the housing market to recover, this is a good time to make improvements in your home that will pay off when you are ready to sell, according to Remodeling magazine's annual "Remodeling Cost vs. Value Report." The report suggests that the remodeling projects need to mirror the mood of the current market, which means that instead of granite countertops and designer fixtures, homeowners need to become more practical, opting for replacing the roof, installing energy efficient windows, or making small cosmetic changes such as a new entryway door. According to Kermit Baker, director of the Joint Center for Housing Studies at Harvard University, homeowners trying to sell their property should concentrate on changes to make their home stand out in the market. These are the home improvement projects that the report found returned the most bang for the buck when it comes to selling your home:

- Installing a steel entry door
- Adding an attic bedroom
- Building a wood deck
- Installing vinyl siding
- Making a minor kitchen remodel
- Replacing worn out windows with energy efficient wood or vinyl ones
